

Vocational School Of Health

The School of Health of Ağrı İbrahim Çeçen University was established within the scope of Ataturk University in order to conduct courses at the undergraduate level. Departments of Nursing and Midwifery were established in the 2003-2004 academic year. These departments are still active. Our studies continue to admit students to the Department of Nutrition and Dietetic Sciences.

Almost all of our students who graduate from the School of Health as qualified medical staff have job opportunities in universities, state hospitals, and health boards. Some go on to become teachers in vocational schools or lectures in school of health of various universities.
